Nixon, Agnew confer today

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a late-night flight back from an abbreviated California visit, President Nixon met today with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to discuss the federal probe of allegations that Agnew received kickbacks from government contractors.

A White House spokesman said the men began their meeting at 10:40 a.m. EDT and that they were alone in Nixon's office.

In advance of the White House session, presidential aides said Nixon had not and would not ask for the vice president's resignation.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Agnew requested the meeting. Warren gave no specific reason, but said the state of the investigation "very probably will come up."

An Agnew spokesman said he believed the vice president asked the meeting to bring Nixon "up to date."

Indications are that Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson must soon decide whether results of the Agnew investigation, being conducted by the U. S. attorney in Baltimore, will be presented to a grand jury.

Nixon and Agnew last met face to face on Aug. 6, the day before the vice president called a news conference to denounce as "damned lies" allegations he took kickbacks while in his present office or while he was Maryland governor.

The two talked by telephone on Aug. 22, soon after Nixon told a California news conference that he has confidence in Agnew's integrity.

At that news conference, Nixon also assailed news leaks on the Agnew probe and said he had told Richardson to make a fuil investigation.

Warren said he did not know when Agnew made the request for today's meeting, but said the session was not the reason why Nixon changed his earlier plans to remain at his San Clemente, Calif., estate until after Labor Day.

Nixon returned to the capital so he could spend the Labor Day weekend with his family at the Camp David retreat in Maryland's mountains, Warren said.

Before leaving California, where he had stayed for 12 days, Nixon sent Congress a message asking for a 60-day delay in implementation of nearly $2 billion in pay raises for 3.5 million federal civilian and military employees.

The pay increases, due to go into effect Oct. 1, could "needlessly fan the flames of inflation," Nixon said.

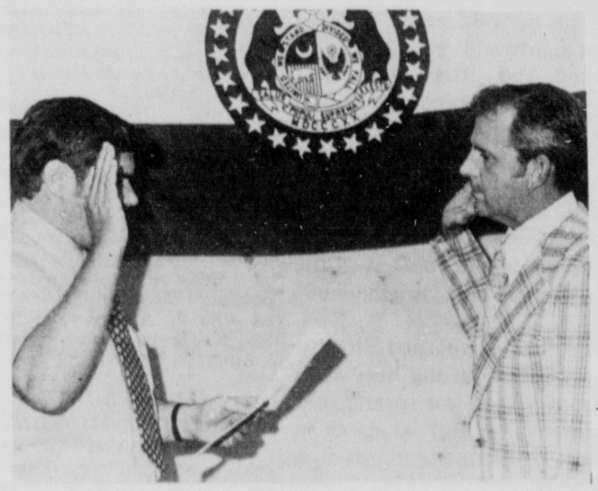

Shooting incident probed

NEW MADRID — An attempted shooting and two grocery store burglaries occurred Friday night in New Madrid County, according to the sheriff's department which is investigating.

A suspect is being held for investigation of an alleged shooting in Marston which occurred about 7:30 p.m. at the home of Donald Babbs. Officers said Babbs was shot at, but not struck, reportedly after the two men had argued.

Moore's Grocery in Canalou was burglarized and cigarettes and candy were stolen. A back door was broken open to gain entry.

In Portageville, Steven's on Seventh Street was burglarized after a back door had been pryed open. Money from a soft drink machine, a small battery radio, two cartons of cigarettes and some loose packages of cigarettes were reported stolen.

Ferrell sworn in as new assessor

BENTON— William r. "Bill" Ferrell, 32, of Sikeston Route Two was sworn into office Friday afternoon as Scott County Assessor by County Clerk Bob Kielhofner at the courthouse.

Ferrell, who was elected to the office last November and officially took office today, replaced Alfred Halter, who had served 26 years as county assessor until his term expired Friday.

Ferrell, a life- long resident of Scott County, graduated from Sikeston High School in 1957, then attended Central Methodist College at Fayette and Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

Ferrell is a member of the Jaycees and a past vice president of the Sikeston club, a charter member of the Sikeston Elks Club and member of Moolah Shrine Temple and First Baptist Church.

He and his wife Sharon have four children.

Parole officer to transfer

After serving three years as field parole officer for Scott County Magistrate and Circuit Courts, Ronald Gene Hall of Dexter is transferring to Macon where he will serve as district supervisor.

Hall will be in charge of the office in general, personnel and will handle a small case load.

His promotion will become effective Sept. 1 but because of conflicts he will not leave until Sept. 17.

A replacement for Hall has not been chosen, but is expected to be announced within the month.

Hall was promoted to district supervisor after eight new districts were created throughout Missouri.

He graduated from Dexter High School in 1963 and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau where he graduated in 1967.

He taught social studies at Bernie Elementary School for one year. He then became a counselor at Bernie Junior High School.

After joining the parole board, Hall was assigned to the Missouri Training Center for men in Moberly. In April of 1971 he transferred to Dexter.

Governor commutes Counts' sentence

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Eugene Floyd Counts, 34, was a wanted man for 14 years while he led a normal life, enlarged his family and worked in a Burnie, Mo., shoe factory.

"I didn't worry about it," he told attorney James Spain, who worked successfully to get Counts' sentence commuted. "I knew that one day I'd be caught, and if I have led a good life it would turn out in my favor."

In 1958 Counts, who lives in Malden, was sent to the state prison in Jefferson City for carrying a concealed weapon.

He later walked away from the Renz Prison Farm in 1959 while serving a two-year sentence.

Friday, Gov. Christopher S. Bond commuted Counts' sentence, effective next Wednesday.

Counts has been employed by the Brown Shoe Co. since 1964. He is married and has six children.

Counts was carrying a Bible the day Highway Patrol Trooper Larry Thompson came to arrest him. A state computer had turned up a card with Counts' name on it, matching it to his name on a wanted list.

Thompson started trying to help Counts and contacted Spain, a former state representative.

Spain said Counts was "a model citizen in every way."

Yet, Counts was put in the Stoddard County jail and state Corrections Department personnel were about to pick him up for a return to the state prison.

Spain obtained a writ of habeas corpus, getting Counts out of jail, and then applied for a governor's pardon.

An investigation was made by Bond's office, the attorney general's staff and the Board of Probation and Parole. It was recommended that Counts' twoyear sentence be commuted.

Spain said Counts' hope came ture mainly because of the work of Thompson, whom he called "a good state trooper."

No Standard on Labor Day

The Daily Standard will not publish Monday in observance of the Labor Day holiday.

City administrative offices will also be closed, as will the post office. No postal deliveries will be made on Monday, and no driving tests will be given by the highway patrol at the Sikeston Armory.

2 receive minor injuries in crash

Two people were treated for minor injuries Friday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital following a two- car accident at the intersection of North Ranney and College streets. Another man was injured at the intersection of South Main and Virginia streets, and a truck driver escaped injury when his truck ran off North Main and overturned.

Jewell Virginia Bell, 41, of 822 N. Ranney and Pual Edward Ulrich, 43, of Cape Girardeau were treated for minor cuts and bruises at the hospital.

According to police, the Ulrich car was westbound on College and did not see the Bell car, southbound on Ranney. The Bell car struck Ulrich's car on the right side, knocking it into a utility pole.

Ulrich was arrested for failing to yield the right of way.

Clyde "Peck" Wisdom, 43, of 107 E. Salcedo Road received bruises on the back at 5:30 p.m. Friday when his pickup truck was involved in a collision with a car belonging to Acie Lee Meyers, 32, of East Prairie. The police accident report was incomplete, and no further information was available.

An unusual one-truck accident at 1:45 p.m. Friday left groceries scattered all along Sikes Avenue at the intersection of North Main.

Fire destroys mobile home

A mobile home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Williams was destroyed by fire shortly after 9 a.m. today. The trailer was located two miles east of Miner in the Ferrell Trailer court. Williams said he awoke to find the trailer filled with smoke and the front bedroom in flames. The couple lost all their possessions. An old fan in the bedroom is believed to have caused the fire. Mrs. Williams, rushing to the fire from her job, lost control of her car in Miner and ended up in a ditch, but was not injured. Fighting the fire, from left, are David Shain, Sam Chadd, Virgil Shelton and Glenn Greene of the Sikeston Fire Department. The Miner Fire Department also sent a pumper truck to the fire. AN AMERICAN DAY

Although not as singularly American a holiday as Thanksgiving, Labor Day has several distinctly American touches which significantly distinguish it from similar occasions the world around.

We, for example, have chosen September for this annual salute to the working man.

Elsewhere, at least in those societies permitting such manifestations, the preferred date is May 1 and the accent, if not always aggressively Marxist, is strong on class — on social division, not unity. Internationally, May Day is the proletariat's red- letter day, a time for toiling masses to demonstrate solidarity in an economic contest with more favored classes. Us against them.

Here, the emphasis is also on mass, but of a different definition. This is a day for the nation en masse — assembly line worker, manager, those in the professions. The working man in the United States is virtually everyman, the entire adult population conceived as laboring together to produce and sharing in the benefits of the national plenty.

It was not always thus. The first Labor Day, observed in New York on Sept. 5, 1882, was a militant demonstration, a demand for rights and recognition.

The battle was prolonged and often bitter, but American labor has long since won recognition. Its rights, underwritten by a mass of social legislation unmatched in the world, are now integral to the structure of our society.

We still have our clashes of economic interest, bargaining breakdowns and strikes. But the dialogue, sharp though it may be at times, in the context of the American experience has taken on a singularly American character.

As democratic capitalism has developed in this country, the sense of class, never so strong here as in the various old countries from which we sprang, has diminished. Laboring commoners can and do speak to economic kings, and in terms of living standards it is not always easy to tell them apart.

There has been a parallel development in the significance of Labor Day. Not class but mass solidarity is the message now. It is an occasion not for demonstrations and militant oratory, but a day for each American — blue collar and white collar — to observe and enjoy in his own way, and through private observance join in a public affirmation of the American achievement.

LABOR DAY

We call it Labor Day but our practice is the opposite. It is a day not to labor but to rest -- except for those whose services are needed for the health and welfare of our nation.

It was the unskilled and semi-skilled laboring man of an industrial society in the making that the first Monday of each September initially was designated to honor. But even as we observe it in our way, time and technological progress keep taking us farther and farther from the original significance.

Today, our labor force faces the competition of foreign industrial growth and increasing productivity of their workers. We can no longer rest on our laurels, and this is the real message of Labor Day in 1973.

Now, President Richard M. Nixon visits with Leonid Brezhnev and reports that Brezhnev is "a delightful personality."

To all of this, Dr. Schwarz adds the cryptic comment: "The lessons of history, when ignored, exact their revenge."

WHY DO WE LABOR?

This is the day the nation sets aside to honor all those who work to produce the goods and services upon which we all depend.

When the observance of Labor Day began in 1882, the emphasis was on a demonstration of labor's unity and strength with parades and speeches extolling the accomplishments of workers and the virtues of honest toil. Today there still is some of that, but most workers regard it as a holiday that marks the end of the summer recreation season.

The change in emphasis is in some ways indicative of the changing attitude toward work which is becoming evident throughout the world.

We long have honored what is known as the Puritan or Protestant Work Ethic which holds that "work is good for the soul," a concept that has been traced back to the rules posted in the monastery at Monte Cassino by St. Benedict in the Sixth Century. "Idleness is the enemy of the soul," Benedict said, and ever since men have believed that work is a good thing in itself.

Acceptance of this work ethic has helped make many nations economically strong. But there is a growing awareness that work along cannot solve all our problems.

The very work men do is often directed at making work less necessary. It creates machines and methods that spare women the drudgery of the kitchen and the laundry and men the physical toil on the land and in the shop. We speak as much now of "productivity" as we do of labor: That is, the ability of one worker to produce as much or more with less and less actual labor.

In addition, many workers no longer find the same satisfaction in accomplishment of work they once did. The assembly line, automation and the computer have often made each worker less important to the whole product and the worker no longer feels able to identify with the product.

Even the worker who still finds pleasure in his work often finds himself doing it not so much because of his interest in what he produces as he does because what he produces or contributes earns money which will buy what he really wants — such things as recreation, leisure, travel, education and consumer comforts.

So the emphasis increasingly is on the limitation of work and the development of free time to the pursuit of things which are not essential but are satisfying.

And, of course, even those who cite the work ethic as their creed should realize that this is not necessarily bad, for Benedict's dictum had a corollary. Having admonished against idleness, he added that "therefore, at fixed times, the brothers ought to be occupied in manual labor, and, again at fixed times, in sacred reading." Thus he recognized the spiritual need which goes beyond just working for the sake of earning a living.

Historian Arnold Toynbee took note of this recently in an article in The London Observer.

"Our modern industrial civilization is unique ... in being not only uncontemplative but also deliberately anticomtemplative," he said.

"Meanwhile, our technology is advancing toward automation, and this is going to impose on us and our successors a far greater amount of leisure than was ever imposed by nature on our predecessors. Work is going to become as rare an anesthetic as the most costly and most strictly prohibited drug ... The conveyor belt that enabled us, in the archaic phase of industry, to evade confrontation with God will now eject us into God's presence."

So as we honor labor and pay tribute to work this day, let us not forget that there is need for more than bread alone. Let us begin increasingly to devote our efforts to development of men's minds and souls, as well as their productive skills, so that men will be able to live together as well as to live.

CANCER IS LOSING SLOWLY TO SCIENCE

We are now three years into the decade in which it is hoped that men will see the final victory of medical science over cancer. Progress has been and continues to be made on many fronts.

One of the most recent steps was the announcement by Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of live- virus polio vaccine, that he and a colleague had found a link between two common viruses and certain forms of cancer.

The announcement was properly cautious: There is evidence that the viruses, which ordinarily cause fever blisters and cold sores, play an important role in some types of cancer "in certain individuals under special conditions."

According to George Goldenberg, president of Ormont Drug & Chemical, few researchers now think in terms of "curing" cancer, particularly in light of the widely held view that the body is constantly producing abnormal cells.

"The eventual answer — and researchers stress that it will probably be a series of answers rather than a single 'miracle cure' — may well be in discovering ways to stimulate the body's own defenses against cancer," says Goldenberg, whose company has invested heavily to develop an "early warning" cancer detection system.

There are almost 200 types of cancer, he notes, and it is not known how many are caused by viruses. But the field of immunology offers new hope for very early diagnosis of cancer as well as its treatment, he adds.

For instance, a Russian research team in Moscow has discovered an immunological test for diagnosing liver cancer, widespread in South and West Africa and Southeast Asia.

Researcher in London are seeking to develop a mass - screening skin test based on the work of Lebanese - born American scientist Dr. Jack Makari.

The importance of the Makari test is that it may make it possible to detect cancer years before any physical "alarms" appear in the patient. Obviously, the earlier the detection, the better the chances for controlling the cancer.

But research is long and difficult. The answer, suggests Goldenberg, may be a "United Nations of Medicine" where cancer research, regardless of the end goal, could be conducted and financed in a concerted, intensified effort to eliminate the disease as a major killer.

Caging the Hijacker:
FAA Chief Reports or Disappearance Of the American Aerial Pirates

WASHINGTON--- Ask Alexander Butterfield a sharp question, you get a straight answer. The Senate Seven, led by Sam Ervin, learned that. They asked Butterfield a question about tapes--- and out came the biggest issue of the hearings.

In all this, it has been virtually overlooked that Butterfield is chief of the Federal Aviation Administration. This is the section of the Department of Transportation which controls our airports--- and attempts to make certain that no aerial pirate hijacks a plane.

Noting what has been happening in Europe and the Middle East, I asked him for a personal report on the security of America's commercial airlines. Here is his answer:

By Alexander P. Butterfield
Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration

Let me begin by saying quite frankly that the present security measures in effect at the nation's airports to protect airline passengers against hijackings, sabotage and related crimes are going to be part of the American travel scene for some time to come.

Such a direct statement is necessary because a great deal of erroneous information has been circulated in the press concerning this matter, and I think its most important that there be no misunderstanding of the government's position.

I am aware, of course, that the present system is not without fault. It imposes an expense on operators, causes inconvenience to passengers and offends the sensibilities of a handful of traveling citizens. But these negative considerations are more than cancelled out in my view by one uncontested and indisputable fact. That is that these procedures work, and work extremely well.

A quick look at the hijacking record for 1973 makes this point rather convincingly. Since Jan. 6, when the air carriers began 100 per cent electronic screening of passengers and search of all carry- on baggage and other items, there has not been a single attempt to hijack an airplane in the U. S. The only attempt this year occurred on Jan. 2, or four days before implementation of the new procedures, and the individual involved was quickly apprehended, tried, convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Now compare this record with that of the past five years when hijackings were of epidemic proportions. From 1968 through 1972, there were 147 attempted hijackings of U. S. aircraft of which 91 were successful. That averages out to just about 30 attempts per year, or one every 12 days. That's not the kind of statistic one can live with easily.

But, as already noted, there are those who would make the present airport security program a victim of its own success. They argue that the hijacking phenomenon has run its course like urban riots and campus disorders and those other anti- social manifestations of the 1960s. As a result, they believe the program should be relaxed if not dismantled.

Let me explain why I disagree.

First of all, I think it's important to understand that the present airport security program was not imposed arbitrarily or capriciously but evolved over a period of years to meet the expanding scope and increasingly violent nature of air piracy. The government turned to 100 per cent screening and law enforcement officials posted at the boarding gate only when less stringent measures had failed to achieve the desired objective of stopping hijacking cold.

In its initial phase, hijacking was a simple "take me to Cuba" type of operation. It generally involved a lone individual who for one reason or another thought his future lay in the revolutionary "paradise" of Fidel Castro. The prevailing philosophy of the airlines in those days was to play along with the hijacker, take him where he wanted to go and then continue the flight.

But this early tolerance of hijackers began to wear thin as the number of incidents mounted and became increasingly more bizarre. Thus, when President Nixon took office in January 1969, he directed the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) of the Department of Transportation to develop measures to stop air piracy. The result was a two- step program involving the use of a special behavioral profile for identifying potential hijackers who were then screened electronically for concealed weapons. This program subsequently was adopted by a number of airlines and put into operation on a voluntary basis at selected locations with considerable success.

Then, in September 1970, a new and frightening dimension was added to the problem of air piracy when Arab terrorists hijacked two U. S. and two foreign jetliners in Europe (another attempt was thwarted), took them to the Middle East and blew them up. Shocked and angered by these outrages, the President ordered establishment of a special sky marshal force to serve as a stopgap measure until ground security at all airports served by U. S. carriers could be improved.

But the real turning point in the hijacking cycle came a year later, on Thanksgiving Eve 1971, when a man known only as "D. B. Cooper" successfully extorted $200,000 from Northwest Airlines, bailed out of one of their jets in flight, and disappeared. Another new wrinkle was added in March 1972, when extortionists concealed live bombs on three U. S. airliners, one of which blew up on the ground at the Las Vegas airport.

Extortion was now the name of the game, and in the first seven months of 1972 there were 18 attempts to hijack an airplane for profit. The fact that none of the perpetrators achieved his objective was slight consolation indeed. Hijacking had blossomed into a critical national problem which required a strong government response.

Consequently, the FAA issued an emergency regulation in January 1972 requiring mandatory use of the behavioral profile or other approved screening systems by all air carriers. Then, after the March bomb incidents, President Nixon directed the FAA to take immediate action to implement previously proposed regulations requiring air carriers and airport operators to develop and implement comprehensive security programs to keep unauthorized persons from gaining access to aircraft and operational areas. This was followed in July by a tightening of screening procedures on all shuttle flights, and in August by an order requiring carriers to stop and search all passengers identified as "selectees" by the behavioral profile.

But the hijacking menace continued and two particularly vicious incidents in October and November 1972 prompted the FAA to adopt new regulations requiring (1) the carriers to electronically screen all passengers and search their carry- on luggage, and (2) airport operators to station armed law enforcement officers at the boarding gate throughout the screening process. These measures went into effect on Jan. 6 and Feb. 16, respectively, and the results already have been reported.

The effectiveness of the new procedures was recently reaffirmed by the Air Transport Association of America, speaking for a majority of the scheduled air carriers, and the FAA in a joint statement. The two parties further agreed on the need to continue these procedures in effect as long as the threat of hijacking exists.

Just how long this will be no one can say because recent incidents in South America and Europe have demonstrated convincingly that hijacking is still a clear and present danger. Moreover, each month, we pick up hundreds of guns, knives, explosives and other unauthorized weapons during passenger screenings, any one of which could provide the means to produce a hijacking.

However, as already noted, we are very much aware that security measures do inconvenience the air traveler--- to some degree--- and we are working closely with the airlines to devise faster and less burdensome techniques. But modifications to the present system, if and when they are applied, will be directed solely at relieving the public inconvenience. We will not compromise our present security standards in the slightest. To do so would be to default on our responsibilities to the traveling public.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Declaration of Nonindependence

WASHINGTON– President Nixon has subtly informed the regulators he picks to protect consumers that he is far more concerned about their loyalty to him than he is about their freedom of judgment.

So outraged was one honest appointee that, even though he was handpicked by the White House, he went to his Democratic senator to complain he had been leaned on.

Agencies like the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Communications Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission are among the least romantic sounding offices in town.

But to the consumer, they mean safe- or- unsafe air flights, fair- or- foul ads, good- or- bad TV, higher- or- lower utility rates and clean- or- dirty food. Even though their members are presidential appointees, they are supposed to act independently of the White House. Several months ago, concerned over too much Democratic- type thinking by his regulators and administrators, Nixon had his then chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, send a private memo to all new appointees.

CROMLEY COLUMN

A copy of the terse memo has reached us. Attached was a column by pro- Nixon writer Ray Cromley, which Haldeman says "The President has read and feels it's important that you have a copy."

The column so endorsed by the President says, "A relatively small group of willful men scattered in key positions through the government have for almost four years actively sabotaged the programs sponsored by their President." It goes on to say that "the President now aims at weeding out" these dissenters.

Haldeman, still quoting the President's views, said Nixon wanted the regulators and other appointees to read the column "so that you will thoroughly understand the basis for (Nixon's) concerns regarding the necessity of avoiding having his policies sabotaged by holdovers in the bureaucracy."

Then, like a grammar school teacher admonishing an eraser- throwing child, Haldeman said, "It is, of course, your responsibility to see that this doesn't happen."

LETTER TO TUNNEY

One of the many appointees to get this "loyalty package" was Robert Morris, a San Francisco attorney picked to fill a slot at the Federal Power Commission, now dealing with the energy crisis.

Though Morris was later to be turned down by the Senate for his pro- industry background, he was so incensed by the Nixon-Haldeman lecture that he wrote to his senator, John Tunney.

"I leave it to your calmer head," Morris wrote Tunney, "to determine whether the essential message-- especially the strong fatherly advice of the final sentence of the memorandum-- is not: 'Brother, you may think you're being appointed to an independent agency, but don't think for a minute that you're independent."

FOOTNOTE: Robert Morris was vacationing in the California mountains when we tried to reach him. H. R. Haldeman, through his attorney John J. Wilson, told our associate Joseph Spear that the memo was "authentic and routinely sent to every nominee at the direction of the President."

BLINKING BAR: The Inter- American Bar Association, which was set up in 1940 to "promote the Rule of Law," held its 1973 conference last month in Brazil where a military dictatorship is the "rule of law."

Although torture now rivals coffee as Brazil's most famous product, the famed lawyers from throughout the Western hemisphere made no mention of Brazil's official repression in their formal talks. They lolled on Rio de Janeiro beaches and imbibed at its posh private clubs virtually within hearing range of the victims of official torture.

As to torture, amiable John Dahlgren, the association's secretary general, told us, "We have no proof of anything like that." Anyway, he added, not a single member of the association protested the site of the meeting.

PEAR HARBOR FLAP: Dusko Popov, a Yugoslav- born British agent who pretended to serve Nazi Germany in World War II, claims he personally warned J. Edgar Hoover in 1941 of "exactly where, when, how and by whom (the U. S.) is going to be attacked."

In the October "True" magazine, Popov will say Hoover "turned purple" and angrily rebuffed him and his warning on Pearl Harbor. Five years later, writes Popov, he had a second personal argument with Hoover over who told the Allies of the "microdot," a tiny piece of film which was affixed by Nazi spies as a "period" in letters but actually could be enlarged into long messages.

Popov says he insisted Hoover was trying to steal credit from him and give it to FBI agents. This time, said Popov, Hoover backed down.

Although Popov's tale is more than 30 years old, it may set off another FBI fracas. An FBI spokesman, after searching FBI data, told us flatly that "Hoover never met Popov."

Welfare benefit hike will cause food stamp loss

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — About 32,000 persons in Missouri will lose their eligibility for food stamps when their federal welfare benefits are increased, says state welfare officials.

At the first of the year, the federal government will take over the aid programs for the blind, permanently disabled and old age assistance.

The Missouri legislature has passed a law and provided money to insurance that recipients will not lose any benefits while they are being transferred to the federal program, called Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

The new federal law says that if a person receives an amount per month equal to his previous federal benefits, together with his food stamp allocation, he will not be eligible for food stamps.

For example, says J. I. Kronk, in charge of the food stamp program for the Missouri Division of Welfare, a person now receives $85 per month in old age assistance and $20 worth of food stamps, which he buys at a discount. If his old age assistance goes over $105 a month, he cannot receive food stamps.

If relatives of those affected are receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments, the ADC recipients still would qualify for food stamps.

Persons not covered by the SSI program can qualify for food stamps if they earn less than $183 a month in net income.

Food Stamp Act amended; imported foods eligible

The Food Stamp Act has been amended so that all food for human consumption is now eligible for purchase with food coupons. The amendment removes the prohibition against the sale of imported foods for food coupons.

The Food Stamp Act has also been amended to make certain garden seeds and plants eligible for purchase with food coupons. Garden seeds and plants are defined for purposes of the food stamp program as seeds and plants for use in gardens to produce food for the personal consumption of the eligible household.

Amendments to the food stamp regulations concerning eligible food have been published in the Federal Register.

Bonnie McMikle bride of Billy C. Hanna Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Charles Hanna Jr.

Miss Bonnie Margarete McMikle became the bride of Billy Charles (Chuck) Hanna Jr. in an impressive ceremony July 21 in First United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McMikle, 224 Kramer Drive, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Charles Hanna, 103 Powers.

The Rev. Otto Dvorak performed the double- ring service before an altar which held a cross and open Bible flanked by brass candelabras. Fireside wicker baskets of assorted summer flowers accented the altar. The couple knelt on a satin-padded white wrought iron kneeling bench for the Lord's Prayer and to receive the sacraments.

A program of pre- nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Mary Jane Childers. Frederick E. Nolley of Kewanee sang and accompanied himself on the guitar with a song written by him especially for the bride and groom, titled "To Bonnie".

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Dot Needham of St. Louis, the bride's roommate from college. Bridesmaids were Miss Willena McMikle and Miss Christy McMikle, sisters of the bride.

The maid of honor wore a formal- length dress of lavender flocked with daisies of assorted colors and lined with soft yellow featuring a parson collar, empire bodice and long full sleeves with wide cuffs. The bridesmaids' dresses were of the same material as the maid of honor's, only lined in shades of lavender and featuring elbow- length sleeves with a ruffle. All attendants wore wide- brimmed summer hats with streamers to match their dresses, and each carried a single mum with matching streamers.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of slipper satin and Alencon lace featuring an empire bodice, parson collar of tiny seed pearls and Juliet sleeves with a narrow cuff of tiny seed pearls. The A- line skirt was covered with Alencon lace forming a scalloped hem. The detachable train, which was appliqued with lace roses, fell from the empire waist into a chapel- length sweep.

Her veil was elbow length and made of illusion net with a crown of flower petals and pearls. She carried a cascading bridal bouquet of daisies with satin ribbon streamers tied in lovers' knots. Her only jewelry was a pair of diamond earrings, a gift from the groom. Upon entering the church, the bride paused to present her mother a red rose and presented the groom's mother a red rose when leaving.

Frederick E. Nolley, the groom's roommate at college, was best man; and Dennis Overbey, cousin of the groom, and Rick Hanna, brother of the groom, were groomsmen. Stan McMikle, brother of the bride; Byran Roach of Indianapolis, Ind., cousin of the bride; and Jim Walker and Terry Presley of Sikeston were ushers. Lewis Jon McMikle served as junior usher and seated the mothers of the bride and groom.

Candlelighter was David Hanna, youngest brother of the groom; and John Frederick Riley of Memphis, Tenn., cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer.

The groom was attired in an ivory brocade Rhett Butler tuxedo with black trousers, white ruffled shirt and black butterfly bow tie. All of the groomsmen, ushers and the candlelighter wore white jackets, black trousers, white tucked shirts and black butterfly bow ties.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McMikle of East Prairie and Mrs. W. G. Lewis of New Madrid, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Charles Hanna of Illmo, grandmother of the groom.

The ringbearer was attired in a white knit suit with short pants and a ruffled shirt with white knee socks. He carried the rings on a heart- shaped slipper satin pillow covered with lace. The rings were held in place by satin streamers tied in lovers' knots.

The mother of the bride selected a beige lace knit dress with beige accessories for her daughter's wedding. The mother of the groom wore a light blue knit dress with white accessories.

A courtyard reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McMikle. The serving table was decorated with silver candelabras and multi- colored flowers flanked by two, cut glass, punch bowls. The four-tiered wedding cake was served from a round table covered with a white, lace, ruffled, ground length cloth. The groom's cake was served from another round table at the opposite side of the wedding cake.

Potted, blooming flowers from the garden of Mrs. P. A. McDougal adorned the courtyard. Assisting with the serving were Miss Mona Overbey, cousin of the groom; Dr. Amelia Shibley of Memphis, Tenn.; and Miss Mary McMikle of Charleston, cousins of the bride.

Guests at the reception received rice bags tied with the bridal colors of yellow and lavender from Miss Tamara McDougal who carried a wicker basket decorated with daisies. Her dress was identical to those worn by the bridesmaids. Miss Kristi McDougal presided at the guest register at the church and the reception.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Hanna live at Illmo and will continue their studies at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau this fall.

The rehearsal supper was held July 20 at Two Tony's Smorgasbord and was hosted by the groom's parents. The tables were decorated with the wedding colors of yellow and lavender in flower arrangements and candles.

A bridal shower was given June 20 by Mrs. Richard McDougal in Epworth Hall of First United Methodist Church. The bridal colors were used in the decorations of the serving table and the gift table. Approximately 50 guests attended or sent gifts. Mrs. McDougal was assisted by Mrs. P. A. McDougal and her daughters, Tamara and Kristi.

RECORD BLUE MARLIN

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Big-game fisherman Alec Nicol broke a world record by catching an 823-pound Pacific blue marlin on 80-pound test line. The man-fish fight in the Bay of Plenty lasted two-and-one-half hours.

The previous world record for a blue marlin was a 652-pounder caught at New Zealand's Bay of Islands in 1965.

Bucket, dipper used to measure behavior

BENTON-- Theories and comparisons of behavior and how you "come across" as a person are fun to apply. The mystery of the dipper and the bucket intrigues me because it's easy to see and apply in everyday life. Hope you enjoy it, too, and appreciate it's author-whoever it is.

You have heard of the cup that overflowed. This is the story of a bucket that is like that cup only larger; it is an invisible bucket. Everyone has one. It is always with us. It determines how we feel about ourselves, about others and how we get along with people. Have you experienced a series of favorable things which made you want to be good to people for a week? When this happens your bucket is full to overflowing.

A bucket can be filled by a lot of things that happen. When a person speaks to you, recognizing you as a human being, your bucket is filled a little-- even more if he calls you by name. If he compliments you on your dress or on a job well done, the level in your bucket goes up still higher. There must be a million ways to raise the level in another's bucket.

But, remember, this is a theory about a bucket and a dipper. Other people have dippers and they can get their dippers in your bucket. Let's say, I am having lunch at a restaurant and accidentally upset a malt that spills all over the table and onto a girl's skirt. I am embarrassed. "Bright eyes" across the table says, "You upset your malt." I made a mistake, I knew I did, and then he told me about it. He got his dipper in my bucket!

Buckets are filled and buckets are emptied. When a person's bucket is emptied, he is very different than when it is full. You say to a person whose bucket is empty, "That's a pretty tie you have," and he may reply in an irritated, defensive way, "What's the matter with my tie now?"

The story of our lives is the interplay of the bucket and the dipper. Everyone has both. The secret of the bucket and the dipper is that when you fill another's bucket it does not take anything out of your own bucket. The level in our own bucket gets higher when we fill another's and, on the other hand, when we dip into another's bucket, we do not fill our own-- we lose a little.

Sometimes we can protect ourselves and others by saying, "Hey, you have your dipper in my bucket!" or "We are getting our dippers in his bucket." Instead, we can say, "Let's fill his bucket" and, in doing this, experience the mystery of the dipper and the bucket!

Ann Landers

Artificial insemination is answer to low sperm count

Dear Ann Landers: Recently, a woman wrote to say she was depressed because her husband had a low sperm count and that she would probably never have children due to his sexual inadequancy. You replied, "The notion that he is inadequate because of his low sperm count in nonscense. All it takes in one, honey."

Your answer disturbed me because it was misleading. A sperm count of less that 100 million will rarely result in fertilization. True, one sperm is all that is needed for conception, but that one needs something like 150 million fellow travelers.

You also implied that if a man can impregnate a woman he is sexually adequate, which suggests that if he CANNOT, he is inadequate. This is untrue. The sexual and reproductive systems, though utilizing the same equipment, are entirely different. Men who have had vasectomies have zero sperm count, but this in no way hinders their sexual performance. ---G.C. Of Rochester, N.Y.

Dear G.C.: Thank you for your letter. The next one goes a step further and suggests what can be done about it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was surprised that you didn't give a more intelligent and helpful answer to the woman who couldn't get pregnant and recently learned it was her husband's fault, not hers.

The same situation existed in our family. My husband (like hers) was not sterile, but he did have a very low sperm count. A doctor suggested artificial insemination, using my husband's sperm, which he collected and froze over a period of several months until there was sufficient to impregnate me. It worked --- twice, and we now have two beautiful boys who look just like their Daddy. ---Patience And Fortitude .

Dear P. and F.: Heartiest congratulations.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for your compassion toward the retarded child. Since I am a worker in the vineyard I hope you will print my letter.

It has been my experience in meeting with thousands of parents of retarded children that they often find themselves initially traumatized by the discovery that their child is handicapped. Then they commence to shop around for clinics and pediatricians who will give them the answers they want.

Some parents have a tendency to minimize their child's limitations. They expect him to go to college, find a job and get married. Others have a tendency to maximize. They are convinced that their child must reamin in an institution for the rest of his life. The majority of retarded individuals do not fall into either category.

We have found that when parents band together and discuss these problems they develop a more realistic perspective. They recover from the initial trauma and view their offspring as a special child who needs affection, respect, and above all, a realistic understanding of his problem.

The Chicago Association for Retarded Children, 343 South Dearborn Street, chicago, is ready to help in any way we can. Our phone number is 922-2202. —— Whitehill, Exec. Director

Dear Otto: I hope you have an efficient telephone operator. She's going to be a busy lady when this column hits print. My heartfelt thanks for the wonderful work you do.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Aquaint yourself with the guidelines.

Littel recalled

Mark Littell, 20-year old righthander from Gideon, was called up by the Kansas City Royals Friday for immediate duty. The fireballing "Country Boy" was the American Association's winningest pitcher with 16 victories, fashioning a 2.56 earned run average. His recall makes him eligable for any playoffs and the World Series.

Royals call for help

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pitching help for the pennant drive is coming to the Kansas City Royals over the next few days as the team calls up seven players and reactivates another.

The mound reinforcements are Mark Littell, 20-year-old righthander from Gideon, Mo., who has won 16 games this season at Omaha, Wayne Simpson and Ken Wright.

Littell was called to the parent club today so he can qualify for the playoffs and the World Series if the Royals make it, said Cedric Tallis, general manager. Players joining any teams after today will not be eligible for championship play.

Simpson, acquired from Cincinnati with Hal McRae in an off-season trade, opened the season here and was assigned to Omaha to polish his pitching. He has been ordered to report to Kansas City Tuesday, a day after the American Association season ends.

Wright is to be taken from the disabled list Sunday.

A team spokesman said two pwayers are scheduled to join the Royals Saturday, the first day teams are permitted to expand their rosters. They are infielder Frank White and Tom Poquette, an impressive outfielder defensively. White was with the Royals earlier in the year. It is Poquett's first major league assignment.

Scheduled to arrive here with Simpson from Omaha on Tuesday are third baseman George Brett and outfielder Jim Wohlford. Both played on the major league roster this season.

Slugging first baseman Frank Ortenzio will report from Jacksonville, Fla., of the Southern League when that circuit's playoffs are completed, probably at the end of next week.

The addition of Littell makes it necessary to move one player off the roster. The man to be dropped was not immediately determined.

Littell's record at Omaha, 166, is tops in the American Association and the best since the league was revived five years ago. His earned-run-average is 2.56, which also leads the league.

Cards lead cut

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Don't ever let anyone tell you one pitch can't mean the whole ball game," St. Louis Cardinals Coach Vern Benson said.

One Diego Segui fork ball went the wrong way for the Cardinals Friday night, and more than the outcome of the game may have hinged on it.

The New York Mets capitalized on the disputed call in the 10th inning to pin a 6-4 loss on the struggling Cardinals.

And the defeat, coupled with the Pittsburgh Pirates doubleheader sweep of the Chicago Cubs, lowered the Cards' lead to one game in the National League East.

The hard-throwing Segui, appearing a 54th time, was already in hot water with two out when the judgment of Plate Umpire Frank Pulli was put to the test.

Wayne Garrett and Felix Millan were aboard with singles and Segui worked carefully in running the count on Cleon Jones to 2-2.

The 35-year-old Cuban righthander, 6-6, next came with a fork ball he thought struck out Jones to retire the side.

But Pulli called the delivery low. The next pitch, also a fork ball, was slammed up the middle to break a 3-3 tie and send the Mets on their way.

"I couldn't believe it," a shaken Segui said later, "but what can you do?

"Everybody can make a mistake," he said in reference to Pulli, "but to have it happen at a time like that is bad. Jones knew it was a strike."

"The game was on the line," said catcher Ted Simmons. "I thought it was our way; he (Pulli) thought it was the other. That's all you can say."

"I've always been told you have to get 'em with the next pitch," noted Pitching Coach Barney Schultz, "but you also can't give them four strikes—or four outs."

The Mets scored twice more in the 10th and the Cards once, but no extra inning would have been required except for two earlier feats.

Mets left-hander Ray Sadecki survived a three-run Cards burst by fanning Luis Melendez and retiring Ken Reitz with exMet Tommie Agee at third. in the opening inning.

Five innings later center fielder Don Hahn crashed into the wall and held an Agee blast that would have scored the fourth Cards run.

Tug McGraw, 2-6, was the winning pitcher in relief. "I never would've guessed that extra first-inning run meant that much," said Sadecki.

Bud makes finals

Learue & McKinnie eliminated National Guard 8-7 and Budweiser knocked out Learue & McKinnie 9-2 Friday night in the Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball tournament at city park.

Crenshaw qualifies

NEW YORK — Bridwell L. Crenshaw of 625 Park Ave., Sikeston, Mo., is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 in cash as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Sikeston Country Club. Crenshaw's ace qualified him for the Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

The Whole Volkswagen Down Payment Story

$125.*

All it takes is $125 cash down to get your hands on a bug. Then with $76.04 a month for 36 months, it's yours forever.*

(If your head isn't an instant computer, that works out to a deferred payment price of $2862.44X which includes a finance charge at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 10.20%.)

What makes our payment plan even nicer is that you get paid back for driving a VW.

Since it only requires about 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts.

And you don't have to buy antifreeze because of the Volkswagen's air-cooled engine.

And you can usually travel about 25 miles or so on one gallon of gas.

Of course, if you want to avoid financing, we have another payment plan. It's called cash.

In which case the cash price is $2478

*Volkswagen Sedan 111, with standard 4-speed transmission. Credit terms listed apply to qualified buyers only.

Scott County Pork Producer Queen Theresa Ziegler of Benton hands Gary Beggs a second place ribbon for having the second best carcass at the market hog show Thursday night in Benton.

Minor injuries result

A car driven by Paul Edward Ulrich, 43, of Cape Girardeau was damaged Friday afternoon when it was struck and knocked into a utility pole by a car driven by Jewell Virginia Bell, 41, of 822 N. Ranney. Ulrich was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for minor cuts and bruises.

Movie director, Ford dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Director John Ford, who won four Academy Awards and helped make the Western film respectable, has died of cancer at his Palm Desert home. He was 78.

Ford, who was considered by many critics as the greatest American director of the soundfilm era, died Friday at his home here. He had been in poor health for several years.

"I'm John Ford, I make Westerns," was the way the big, gruff, uncompromising director often introduced himself.

At one of his last public appearances, when the American Film Institute cited him in April for lifelong service to the movie industry, President Nixon called Ford a genius in his profession.

Ford, whose 50-year career included credits for more than 140 films, was most noted for his Western epics, including "My Darling Clementine," "Fort Apache," "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," "Rio Grande," "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" and "Cheyenne Autumn."

However, his "Stagecoach" in 1939 was considered by most critics as Ford's greatest film. It restored respectability to Westerns after a long period of neglect.

Ford was also known for his pictures on other themes. He won his first Academy Award in 1935 for "The Informer." It was a moody tale of betrayal during the 1922 Sinn Fein rebellion in Dublin, Ireland, and reflected the director's Irish heritage.

Ford was born Sean Aloysius O'Feeney on Feb. 1, 1895, in Cape Elizabeth, Maine. His name change followed the lead of an older brother, who had become a movie actor under the name Francis Ford.

With the new name of John Ford, he found work at Universal Pictures as an assitant diector shortly after his arrival in Hollywood in 1913.

In 1914 he directed his first film, "Lucille the Waitress."

After "The Informer," Ford won Academy Awards for "Grapes of Wrath" in 1940 and "How Green Was My Valley" the following year. In 1952 he won again for "The Quiet Man."

Ford is survived by his widow, Mary; a son, Patrick; and daughter, Barbara Ford, a Hollywood film cutter who once was married to actor Robert Walker.

roadside drainage ditch and up the other side between a utility pole and a guy wire, struck a street sweeper, overturned and scattered the groceries along Sikes Avenue.

The truck was driven by Donnie Lee Kennedy, 44, of Cape Girardeau. The truck is owned by Cauble and Fields Fruits and Vegetables of Cape Girardeau. The street sweeper which the truck hit is owned by Girardeau Contractors, which has been doing construction work on Main Steet.

The truck also struck and broke off a water hydrant.

Police today were still trying to decide exactly what caused the accident.

Store break-in

MOREHOUSE-- Imperial Floor Coverings on High 60 West was broken into sometime Thursday night and a small amount of money, typewriter and small combination radio- tv set were taken.

The highway patrol said today that $5 was missing from a soft drink machine.

Entry was gained by breaking a large plate front glass window.

Portageville water bids taken

PORTAGEVILLE-- Bids for contracts on the proposed improvements to the city water treatment plant will be received until 7:30 p.m. Sept. 18 at the city clerk's office in the city hall.

At that time the bids will be opened and any bids received after opening time will be returned unopened.

A minimum bid bond of five per cent of the total bid is required to be submitted and included with the sealed bid.

Bidders are requested to examine the existing plants and conditions before submitting a bid.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

Come; for all things are now ready. (Luke 14:17)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, for placing self where Christ should be, for prizing earth above eternity, forgive us and help us find interest in the riches of the things eternal. For Jesus' sake Amen.

Defoliation tips given

By JOE H. SCIOTT
State Agronomy Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE — Defoliation decisions in the Bootheel this fall will have to be made on a field by field basis. There is more variations in growth and maturity of cotton than has been observed in several years.

It will not be profitable to defoliate short, late maturing cotton. Timing of defoliation of tall green cotton with high yielding potential is important due to lateness of crop. We can't afford to cut the yield of our short crop.

Most growers know the benefits of defoliation and would like to make one application by air do the job. This has been difficult to accomplish in the Bootheel with our cool falls, as we need all the time we can get to mature our crop.

However, as during most falls we are confronted with situations where defoliation is necessary. Timing of defoliant application to the entire cotton plant when expectant yield is high has to be a compromise between top crop maturity and bottom crop deterioration.

While waiting for top bolls to mature the bottom bolls may rot and open cotton will be exposed to several weeks of weathering before harvested. Losses in both yield and quality may result. If overall defoliation will reduce top crop, bottom defoliation may be the answer.

The best time to make application for bottom defoliation depends on principal benefit desired. If trying to reduce boll rot, application should be at or just before initial boll opening. In preparation for cotton harvesting, application should be made when 15-20 per cent of bolls are open.

Care must be taken to avoid spraying too high on the plants. Keep the spray nozzle tilted slightly toward the ground so that the top edge of the spray fan is parallel to the ground. Bolls in the treated zone should be mature as determined by firmness to thumb pressure, resistance to cutting and dark seed. Yield and quality will be reduced by the number of immature bolls defoliated.

Nozzles for bottom defoliant application may be either the flooding type or the flat- fan herbicide type. Nozzles are supported behind fenders or shields of high-clearance ground sprayers so that spray is directed to all foliage in the zone to be treated.

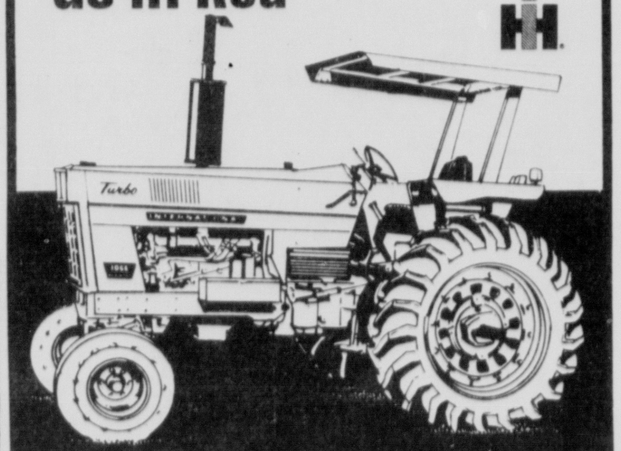

Bottom defoliation should be followed by bottom harvesting, usually within 12 to 20 days or as soon as the bolls in the treated zone have opened.

Your area agronomy specialist is available to assist with your defoliation decisions.

Students work at entaining

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Stage manager Rick Lester, a prelaw major from Springfield, Mo., sees it is nearly 11:30 a.m., time for the first of eight shows to be presented during the day. "Places," he bellows.

The call interrupts the idle chatter of the 16-member cast and the youthful entertainers shuffle along the dimly lit stage, wisecracking, chuckling all the while. "Remevber," says one, "it's just a summer job."

Beyond the curtain rows of speakers welcome the capacity crowd of 1,500 to the theater at the Worlds of Fun amusement park.

An orchestra swings into a lively overture of tunes from Cohan to the rock "Shaft." Some of the professional musicians, having played the same selections nearly 500 times since the season opened in midApril, dutifully strum or blow their notes while, at the same time, reading a variety of books. A golf magazine resting atop one musical score, for example, is opened to an article advising, "How to Stop Hooking Right Now."

The curtain rises to contrasts—the audience and the cast. The tourist crowd is a bit surly, already fagged by a humid, stifling day.

The senior high school and college-age kids on the stage appear cool and deligted in their mod outfits. With spirited steps and unfaltering smiles they move through a 35-minute performance that features solo and group song-and-dance acts.

Some of the numbers are grueling, like the high-stepping, snappy dance accompanying renditions of the '40s big bands. Add to that as many as five costume changes for some in the cast.

There also is mental duress.

Even as the cast prepares for the opening number, Tom Tucker, 21, a University of Kansas student from Arkansas City, Kan., is "getting himself up" for another solo in which he portrays Al Jolson doing "Mammy."

"I've got to 'psych' myself for that number; you can see how emotional it is," he said.

Those in the case for the duration of the season—from midApril through October—will have presented the same performance at least 600 times.

About 100 young people work as entertainers during the height of the season at the "family entertainment center" here, one of the latest in a growing number of "theme" parks across the country. Logic says that by the end of summer the kinds should be drained. But the enthusiasm they show after presenting the same performance hundreds of times defies logic.

Some say the comaraderie has been a big plus in checking boredom — that some of the friendships coming out of the summer are the closest they've known.

In "Twentieth Century Sing," the 32 youngsters working day and night slots are from Texas, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota. Some are away from home for the first time and their stage colleagues are their only social contacts.

Too, the theater comes to represent a secure haven, a familiar place that breaks into song and dance at regular intervals.

"In many ways it's a makebelieve existence," Tucker said. "Most of us almost forget about what the real world is doing."

Lester, who is doubling as stage manager during the day and one of the entertainers in the evening cast, conceded, "Oh, by this time of the season all a lot of them want to do is get the hell out of here." But he has seen it before, having worked three previous summers at Six Flags Over Texas. "After four or five months," he said, "they'll miss it."

REVISED OLYMPIC STORY

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Story of the Olympic Games," by John Kiernan and Arthur Daley and published by Lippincott, had to be substantially revised.

Changes were necessitated because of the action of Arab [illegible]atics, who murdered 11 Israelis in Munich and Mark Spitz's unprecedented seven gold medals in swimming.

The Munich episode occupies 38 pages in the 542-page revised edition.

Turnips replace weeds

HAYTI HEIGHTS — Vacant lots in Hayti Heights won't present problems to that city any more — just produce. In a word, turnips!

Sowing the abandoned lots with turnip seed this winter is but one of the ingenius ideas being incorporated in the community which is waging an all- out war against the community's ailments.

Mayor David Humes hit upon the idea in an effort to keep down weeds as well as help residents stretch their food stamp dollars.

Since the city was incorporated last December, Hayti Heights has been taking advantage of each opportunity to better the standard of living there, which is on the poverty level for the vast majority of its residents.

The city's young mayor — associated with federal programs for the past nine years — is knowledgeable in weaving through the red tape to get federal funds and is putting it to work to get more funds.

Although most of the money received to build up the city is through federal agencies, there's one private source that has come through for the city — a Texas multi- millionaire by the name of Bernard Rapoport, who through the auspices of the United Auto Workers has given $3,000 to date and has indicated more will be forthcoming.

Food stamp program may pose problems

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri will have a difficult time converting threefourths of its counties to a federal food stamp program by next July 1, state Division of Welfare officials said Thursday.

A farm bill rently signed by President Nixon includes a provision that the states, by July 1, offer food stamps to all needy families, based on income guidelines set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Roy Ferguson, superintendent of the food distribution program for the division, said no guidelines had been received and thousands of applications will have to be processed.

Missouri now has 24 counties and the City of St. Louis in the food stamp program, where families may buy stamps at 37 per cent of their face value. The stamps then can be used to purchase food at designated stores.

The other 91 counties are in the USDA food commodity program, where the families get surplus food free. However, the food surplus has been rapidly decreasing.

The commodity program will be continued for schools and hospitals for use during natural disasters.

Tri-county agency in operation

The Tri- County Human Development Corporation, a social services agency, is now in full swing in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties.

The federally- funded corporation was set up to design, implement and evaluate the effectiveness of social services in the three- county area.

Tri- County offices have been established in the public housing authorities in Kennett, Caruthersville, Portageville and Hayti to provide direct services to residents of public housing.

Fred Robinson is executive director of Tri- County.

"We will mainly try to utilize the existing social services in the area and if the existing programs are not sufficient for the needs of the people, we will apply for funds to begin a program," he said.

Residents of public housing will have full access to the broad range of social services available through Tri- County and they can contact their respective housing authorities for service.

"We are directed more at the elderly right now," Robinson said, "but the needs of entire families are also one of our goals."

"We will counsel residents and decide what action is open to us, such as organizing tenant groups or youth groups such as a 4- H program."

Barbara Hart, a social worker whose office is in the Kennett Housing Authority office, said the corporation will work with related agencies to establish lines of communication for programs concerning medical services, transportation and recreation, among others.

"We will talk to the people, determine what their needs are and either utilize the existing agencies or apply for funds," she said.

Robinson was formerly on the staff of the Lutheran Family and Children's Services in St. Louis. His past work experiences include the Hilltop Day Care Center, DePaul Hospital Sickle Cell Anemia Program and the Missouri Division of Welfare Expanded Services Project in the Pruitt-Igoe Housing Project.

Sheridan R. Skeen is the supervisor of social services. He is from Illinois where he was a member of the professional staff of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society.

Other staff members are Freda Ivory, social services counselor in Hayti; Gloria Mitchell, social services counselor in Portageville and James McNeal, social worker in Caruthersville.

The central office of Tri-County is located in the East Haven Housing Project in Caruthersville. The telephone number is 333- 0535.

Adequate soil moisture lacking

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Many parts of Missouri are reporting lack of adequate soil moisture, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

The northwest, northeast, east and Bootheel sections still had adequate moisture, the service said.

There were also a few occasional shortages of fuel, but supplies were adequate in most places.

Seventy per cent of the corn was in the dough stage and 36 per cent in the dent stage. A year ago all corn was in the dough stage at this point and 70 per cent in the dent stage.

Northeast and Northwest Missouri reported excellent conditions for soybeans with the crop in fair to good condition over the remainder of the state. Sixty-five per cent of the soybeans were setting pods last week, still 16 points behind last year's crop.

Grain sorghum was 84 per cent headed, six per cent behind last year.

Cotton is in fair to good condition with cotton bolls open on one per cent of the crop compared with three per cent a year ago.

And the third cutting of alfalfa is now 70 per cent completed, compared with 78 per cent at this time last year.

NBC News TV Special

3- HOUR NBC NEWS TV SPECIAL ON ENERGY CRISIS AND ITS CONSEQUENCES TO PREEMPT ENTIRE EVENING OF PRIME- TIME PROGRAMMING IN SEPTEMBER

NBC News' three- hour prime- time color TV special on the growing energy shortage-- and its potentially dire consequences-- will be presented Tuesday, Sept. 4, from 7 to 10 p.m., on the NBC Television Network. It will mark the fourth time since 1963 that NBC News has preempted an entire evening of prime- time programming to explore a problem of national or worldwide dimension.

The program's title is "NBC Reports: The Energy Crisis-- An American White Paper."

Fred Freed is the executive producer. Len Giovannitti and Alvin Davis are the producers.

International in scope, the White Paper is being filmed in many locations in the United States, in Europe, and in oil- producing nations of the Middle East.

Figuring importantly in the program will be government officials, leaders of United States energy companies, environmentalists, scientists, economists, consumer advocates, and leaders from financial and research institutions.

Both the immediate energy plight and the longer-term aspects of the crisis are to be examined. Signs of the crisis this summer will be documented. (Brownouts of electric power for lighting and air conditioning have already occurred, and gasoline curtailment is in effect in som areas.) The program also will look ahead to the next 10 to 15 years-- years when what has been called the "energy crunch" will be elt. It is during this period that Americans may be expected to experience shortages and higher prices as solutions to the energy problems are sought.

The White Paper will focus on these, among other, aspects of the energy crisis:

The reality of the energy crisis, which has been called "one of the most crucial issues of our time."

The American appetite for energy. (With 6% of the world's population, Americans use almost one- third of the energy resources.)

The waste of our energy resources. (The United States wastes 50% of all the energy it burns.)

Conservation as a tool in blunting the crisis.

How the energy crisis will disrupt and change the American way of life.

The conflict between environmental goals and energy demands.

The oil crisis. What is it?

The dependence on foreign source of oil-- mainly the Middle East-- for energy during the next 10 to 15 years.

The complex economics and politics of energy.

Possible changes in American diplomacy as a result of the crisis.

New energy sources, such as nuclear fission.

In 1963, NBC News presented "The American Revolution of '63," a study of the civil rights issue, the first three- hour planned news special in network television. Two NBC News White Papers followed: the three- and- a- half- hour "United States Foreign Policy" and the three- hour "Organized Crime in the United States" in 1965 and 1966 respectively, both produced by Fred Freed.

Mr. Freed is the winner of seven Emmys and two George Foster Peabody Awards. His most recent White Paper, a two- part series on the American military establishment, "And Now the War Is Over," received high critical acclaim.
